World-Wide Communion Sunday All Christians Invited

This Sunday, October 6, is designated as World-Wide Communion Sunday among most of the Protestant Denominations in many other countries of the world. Sharing in the conviction of the Apostle Paul, "There is one body and one Spirit, one Lord, one faith, one baptism, one God and Father of us all ." (Ephesians 4:4-6) followers of Jesus today are encouraged to gather at the Lord's table.
Wherever Christians, north or south, east or west, come together in this Communion observance they partake of the bread and cup, as He said, in remembrance of Him. They are aware that they are not dealing with mere signs, but with the everlasting verities which these signs confess. They approach the table humbly, reverently, penitentially, adoring, believing, as they eat and drink they make it known that they wish Christ to enter into their lives as the elements are received into their physical bodies. They partake as individual persons, but know that they are interjoined with all other Christians before God through the Christ. They know that as God has loved them and they have loved God in return, they must also love their Christian brother, and all for whom Christ died.
All Christians are encouraged to attend their Church on Communion Sunday in the fellowship of all believers in Christ. All who are not Christians are invited to come and receive the peace and love which Jesus Christ offers to all, that they too may share in glorifying the God and Father of us all.

In college he was also active in athletics. In Christian activities, and in student government — besides working his way through school.
Mr. Bartlett was appointed a missionary in 1939 and a few months later sailed for Africa. His first appointment was to the capital city of Elisabethville where he took over the large school of the Methodist Church that has been organized by Dr. (now Bishop) and Mrs. J. Sewall S. Booth, and was also superintendent of the Elisabethville District and enthusiast in the marshes in outlying communities from the center. He is fluent in French and in the native Swahili language.
During a furlough to the U.S. A. in 1944, Mr. Bartlett was married to Miss Doris Marie Powell of Maspeth, L. I. They returned to the Congo in 1945.

Rev. Bartlett Guest Speaker At Memorial Methodist Sunday and have since been stationed at the training center.

"The Methodist Church has six stations in the southern Congo: Elisabethville, Jadotville, Mulungwishi, Kanene, Sandoa, and Kapanga," says Mr. Bartlett. "Each Station is located in a different language group, though in Elisabethville nine languages are used in Sunday school. Mulungwishi is the site of our central training school, Springer Institute. The Institute has four schools: Primary School, Teacher's Training Course, Woman's School and Theological School.
Here our pastors and teachers and their wives are trained for their work.
"Elisabethville and Jadotville are centers of great industrial activity and represent a different picture of Africa than that found on the 'bush' or rural station. We are the only Protestant mission in Elisabethville and thus the only representative of the evangelical gospel to the thousands who come there to work. There are about 4,000 children enrolled in the Methodist schools of that district alone."
